

Merck Canada Inc. Data Privacy Commitment to Canadian Healthcare Professionals

FACTS	This Notice provides a comprehensive overview of the practices of Merck Canada Inc. ("Merck ") , a Canadian corporation, a member of the Merck & Co., Inc. (Whitehouse Station, NJ, USA) global family of companies, with respect to the collection, use and disclosure of personal information about healthcare professionals.
Privacy at Merck	At Merck & Co., Inc. – also known as Merck Sharp & Dohme (MSD), as Merck Canada Inc. in Canada and as Banyu in Japan (collectively "Merck" or the "Company") – a global research-based pharmaceutical company, privacy is fundamentally about trust. Consistent with the Merck tradition of upholding high ethical standards across our business practices, we have demonstrated our commitment to privacy of personal information by establishing a global privacy program to support compliance with applicable privacy laws and standards for protecting personal information around the world.
Why?/ the "Purposes"	In accordance with Canadian privacy laws, Merck may, from time to time, collect, use and share identifiable information about you ("personal information") in your capacity as a healthcare professional for purposes related to our interactions with you (the "Purposes"). The term "healthcare professional" includes physicians, pharmacists, medical investigators, researchers, nurses and other healthcare professionals.. The Purposes for which Merck collects your personal information in connection with our every day business operations fall within the following four categories: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>(1) medical &amp; research related purposes – examples: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• your interest in being involved in clinical, epidemiology and outcomes research study management</li> <li>• to identify and engage scientific experts and leaders</li> </ul> </li> <li>(2) to provide you with information, products, services and features that you have requested or that may be of value to you – examples being: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• delivery of programs and materials for your patients</li> <li>• patient assistance and reimbursement programs</li> <li>• communication of information about our products and business (including marketing &amp; sales programs) through our professional representatives, our web sites, via e-mail, call centers, postal mail and other channels</li> <li>• to determine your interest in symposia, conferences and other scientific and educational programs</li> <li>• as requested by you, to provide you with product samples or orders for our products</li> <li>• providing access to our resources and keeping track of our interactions with you both offline and online (our online practices are governed by our Internet Privacy Policy)</li> </ul> </li> <li>(3) to gain an understanding of your current professional needs and preferences to develop, enhance or provide products, services and scientific information geared to those needs and preferences <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• gain your insight on the development of sales and marketing programs</li> <li>• obtain additional information through business and market research.</li> </ul> </li> <li>(4) to comply with legal and regulatory requirements including: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• adverse experience and product complaint reporting</li> <li>• required tracking of payments made to healthcare professionals for services performed on behalf of the Company</li> <li>• financial disclosure reporting</li> <li>• auditing our programs and resources for compliance and security purposes</li> <li>• determining the appropriateness, given the requirements of laws applicable to our business, of engaging healthcare professionals for certain of the business purposes described above</li> <li>• legal proceedings and government investigations, including preservation of relevant data</li> </ul> </li> </ol> Any personal information collected by Merck will be disclosed only on a need-to-know basis within Merck for the Purposes for which the information was collected or as may be required or permitted by law. Although personal information is retained in Canada on a secure server, Merck, as a global company, provides many support services to Merck Canada Inc. and, as such, certain personal information may be located on a consolidated database at Merck facilities outside Canada; these databases only collect, receive, use and share personal information in keeping with the principles of use for a particular Purpose and on a need-to-know basis and with required safeguards in place. When Merck engages the services of a third party in the context of the Purposes, then personal information may be shared obtained from or shared with said third parties with appropriate safeguards in place, including but not limited to contractual safeguards as relates to the use and retention of your personal information; see the "HOW" section of this Notice for further details in terms of sharing of personal information with third parties. Where local laws require that you provide specific consent for the collection, use and disclosure of personal information for a Purpose, you may be asked to provide your consent by appropriate and permitted means.
What? – personal information	The types of personal information we collect (directly from you or from public or third party information sources) and share depend on the Purpose and consequently the relationship you have with Merck and the requirements of applicable law. Only personal information that is required for a Purpose will be collected. Personal information which may be collected, depending on the Purpose, may include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• your contact information including your name, address of your clinic/practice, telephone &amp; fax numbers, e-mail address</li> <li>• your professional credentials, publications, patents and other scientific and medical achievements</li> <li>• roles or positions held with governmental bodies or hospital or payor organizations</li> <li>• your areas of interest</li> <li>• your views on continuing medical information</li> <li>• your preferred method of communication</li> <li>• your preferred types of medical information</li> <li>• organizational and institutional affiliations</li> <li>• programs and activities in which you participated</li> <li>• information about your prescribing of Company products</li> <li>• agreements you have signed with Merck</li> </ul>
